Opened in 1998 as the first private museum in Oman, Bait Al Zubair pays tribute to Oman's heritage. The Museum displays a collection of Omani artifacts that span several centuries, and is considered to be the finest that is privately owned. Its ethnographic artifacts reflect highly specialized inherited skills that define Oman’s society, both past and present.

Exhibits of the traditional attires present throughout Omani governorates show the celebration of the diversity of Omani culture. In 2005, Bait Al Zubair evolved into a cultural foundation, dedicated to serving the local and broader communities. Over the years, Bait Al Zubair grew to become a cultural hub, spearheading innovative cultural projects, events, and initiatives.
